Federal Election Commission (FEC)
Reports Analysis Division
1050 First Street, NE
Washington, DC 20463

Dear FEC Analyst,

On July 16, I received an email from the FEC that encouraged me to file a statement documenting that my campaign committee has NOT met or exceeded the $5000 reporting threshold for money raised or spent that triggers the formal reporting requirement.

My campaign committee has NOT met or exceeded this $5000 threshold, and I am submitting this letter as a statement to this effect. Furthermore, I do not plan to meet or exceed this threshold over the entire course of the 2024 U.S. Presidential Election, as I am not actively raising or spending money and I primarily campaign on Twitter (which is free to use).

For examples of my Twitter campaign statements, please see the following links on the following topics:

My proposal to bulk negotiate ride share rates and offer reimbursement for enrollees in my Price Support for Labor program that retire at least 20 work hours per week by selling those hours to the federal government, so such enrollees do not need to own a car.

My request to the South African government to consider Veronica Ehrenreich-Risner's proposal for democratizing chieftaincy through voluntary rural-rural migration, in which she offers the following proposal: "Rather, this author posits that funding the ability of rural Africans to voluntarily migrate between chiefs is key to the solution. To this end, the Department of Traditional Affairs (DTA) could institute a grant application process for individual rural Africans seeking to migrate between chiefs. The application would need to identify an eligible applicants level of need, present inkosi, and preferred destination inkosi. Such a grant should provide funds to compensate the applicant for improvements to the current land upon which they reside, to aid in the cost of moving, and to give an economic incentive for the new inkosi to allocate land to the applicant. Also, as popular chiefs retain more and more adherents, the government should seek to apportion new land (where possible) to those chiefs for them to allocate amongst their growing base of subjects, thus offsetting the land-use impact of voluntary rural-rural migration. Upon offering such incentives to the destination inkosi, chiefs would compete to offer better services, as they would seek to grow their base of subjects, which would simultaneously inculcate a democratizing element into chieftainship." My proposal to allow whole states to opt out of participating in my Price Support for Labor, such that individual conservative states could proceed without Welfare or Social Security programs should they so desire, thus abating tensions in those states deriving from anti-Welfare sentiment.

the Social Security retirement pension program by eliminating earnings test that previously resulted in reductions in benefits for Social Security recipients who had continued to earn income. I have proposed to in effect bring these reductions back by reforming Social Security into my formal price Support for Labor program.

My observation that although President Trump railed against illegal immigrants receiving Welfare in his 2016 campaign, his own Tax Reform that he enacted while in office allows the IRS to pay child tax credit to illegal immigrants who file their taxes using a TIN.

My observation that it makes no sense for President Biden to tout environmental initiatives at the same time as he seeks to dramatically expand the U.S population by paying parents to have an open-ended number of children via the child Tax Credit, which will surely prove a huge drain on environmental resources.

My proposal to transfer water from wetter states to drier states via the wetter states using electrolysis to convert that water into hydrogen and the drier states buying that hydrogen for use as fuel, then saving the resulting waste water produced during the usage of this hydrogen fuel.

My proposal for Public Option Social Media that eliminates concerns about fake accounts and restrictions upon free speech by providing each U.S. citizen with one account over their entire lifetime. While users could remain anonymous so long as they choose to, voters could demand that candidates reveal their account identity as a condition for running for office.
